Principal's Message

Each year as the school term draws to a close we pause to take stock of our accomplishments, and to form our plans for the future. This is a special year for all Canadians for one hundred years ago on September first, the Charlottetown Conference met. There, under the spell of the faith and courage of the five delegates from the Canadas, the idea of a union of all of British North America was adopted. They hoped to build a nation with population and resources capable of pursuing its own destiny among the nations of the world.

One month later, October first 1864, the Fathers of Confederation met in Quebec. They adopted the Seventy-two Resolutions that made possible the Dominion of Canada.

These men caught a vision of a nation stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and sacrificed personal ambitions and local privileges to make this a reality. We know that their most prophetic vision could not picture a century of such magnificent advancement. This is the country that you and I accept as our heritage.

In 1864 Winnipeg offered the appearance of a small village with deeply rutted mud streets. Its only natural approach was by Hudson Bay and the Hayes River or from St. Paul by the Red River.

Today at the junction of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers stands our city of half a million people with all of its modern conveniences. It is a gateway to the great Northwest rich in wheat, timber, oil and minerals. Canada has become a nation of twenty million that has played an honourable part in two world wars, and has used its influence to further the cause of peace in the councils of the world.

This is your heritage and in a few years you will accept the responsibility of adult citizenship. It is my hope that you will be motivated with a national pride that honours the past and determines to build a nation founded on justice, tolerance, integrity and love.

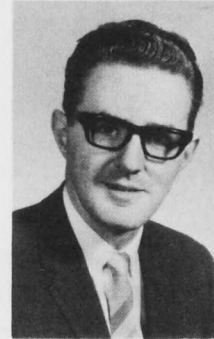

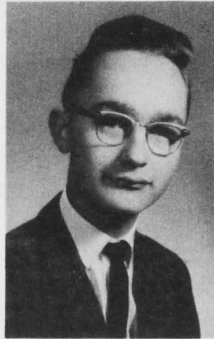

The staff of Edmund Partridge join with me in wishing our Grade IX pupils every success in their future education. We hope that Grade VII and VIII pupils will find the school year of 1964 - 65 enjoyable, rewarding and challenging.

I would like to thank the teaching staff for their loyal support and for the many extra tasks that they assumed in remedial work and extra curricular activities.

Editor's Message

As the school term draws to a close, we can look back over a most satisfying year. Scholastic, athletic and musical achievements have been very high. Our social functions have been enjoyable, and in some cases, very profitable.

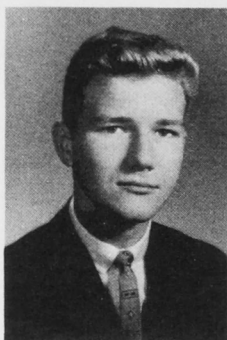

However, it is not wise just to reflect on the past year's highlights. Of greater importance are the years ahead. For those of us who are leaving Edmund Partridge it is a departure filled with regret, yet with eager anticipation of what lies ahead. We are embarking on the most important and difficult phase of our education, and the awareness of this makes us realize that we must work all the harder next year.

We have been preparing for this task for the past two hundred days. Without our teachers' help this would not be possible. For this reason I wish to salute the teachers for all the teaching skill and patience they have exhibited this year.

This yearbook is intended as a memento of the 1963 - 64 school term. Into it went the work of many hours. In closing, I wish to thank Mr. Wieler for his help and co-operation. I would especially like to thank my assistant editors, without whose help this book could not have been published. To all the teachers who co-operated with the yearbook staff, thank you.

President's Message

As the current school year draws to a close, we look back upon the 1963-64 term with mixed feelings. Many of us will graduate to senior high school, a more advanced stage of our education. We will miss Edmund Partridge and the friends and acquaintances we have made here.

During my term as president, I hope I have fulfilled the trust and confidence bestowed upon me. The student council could not have functioned efficiently with the co-operation of students and teachers. I especially would like to thank vice-president Melvin Verin and the grade representatives for working so faithfully to make our year profitable.

The past year has been eventful. We have had a Halloween Dance and our Sweetheart Ball was a great success. Several other dances, in addition to a number of noon-hour sock-hops, were also sponsored. Moreover, even though our chocolate bar sale had an unfortunate finale the pep rally preceding it was entertaining.

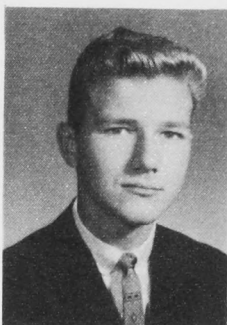

I am sure that the years we have spent in Edmund Partridge will be among the most enjoyable and purposeful years of our lives.

In conclusion, I would like to wish the graduates and undergraduates success and much happiness.

Valedictory

I stand before you today with mixed emotions. I am deeply honored to have been chosen to represent the graduating class of 1963 - 1964. We are here today to say good-bye to Edmund Partridge School - our second home for the past three years. It is very difficult to say good-bye to something to which we have become so accustomed. Anticipation is yet another feeling within me. What does the future hold in store for us?

However, before we continue to further our education, let us discuss the many things that our school has tried to instill in us. First, and foremost, comes honour, which includes dignity, courage, integrity, and respect. This honour shall be utilized in every phase of our lives. When involved in a difficult predicament, honour must be remembered. We must have the courage to go on even though many obstacles may be placed in our paths. We must have respect for our parents, our teachers, our peers, and the system of our society.

We have been taught the meaning of self-evaluation. How many times have we written an English essay and thought it was absolutely perfect? We've handed it into our teacher, thinking it worth at least $29\frac{1}{2}$ out of 30. How disappointed we were when the mark our so-called masterpiece received was $19\frac{1}{2}$ instead of the $29\frac{1}{2}$ we expected. Then our teacher explained our errors and we realized that we must judge our work more critically.

A great deal of time has been spent teaching us the many things that are so vitally important for success in today's fast moving world. Is saying "thank you" enough to express our deep feelings to the people who have worked so hard to make us better citizens? We owe a great debt indeed to our society that has made such learning possible. I know of no better way to repay this debt than to use our talents to the utmost and to take advantage of all the knowledge acquired by putting it into action.

We now have certain criteria by which we appreciate values. With all the knowledge we have acquired, certainly we will be able to discriminate between the beneficial and the harmful. Above all, if we have not learned how to live, we have learned how to learn, and this alone is a great asset.

At the rate things are moving, no one knows quite what to expect in the future. Will we be continuing our education sitting in desks on Mars or Jupiter? Will we be doing without cars on wheels and have for our mode of transportation flying automobiles instead? Although so many things in the world around us are changing, one thing will always remain the same. This is the fundamental truth instilled in us at Edmund Partridge.

Learning is a never-ending process. No matter how much we think we have learned, or plan to learn, there is always more to be sought. Alfred Lord Tennyson expresses this thought in a much more dynamic manner:

"All experience is an arch
Where through gleams that untravelled world
Whose margin fades forever and forever
When I move."

Fellow graduates, "Semper Excelsior" - Always Upward and Onwards.
Thank you.

Band

This year the school band, in its second year of existence, was greatly strengthened in each section by the entrance of the grade sevens. Under the capable direction of Mr. White, all members worked diligently. They gave the public a chance to see their performing at the school's Christmas Concert and also at a concert at the Y.M.C.A.

In mid-March the uniforms for the band arrived. These smart professional-looking outfits of blue and white gave the musicians a look of class. A blue and silver flag with the letters E.P.J.H. surrounding a four flamed torch was designed especially as the band's emblem.

In May, our musicians went to Moose Jaw to compete against bands from all over the country. Here they gave a very successful performance. From the achievements of the band this year, we can see that it has become an essential part of the school's activities.

Drama Club

The Drama Club had the most successful year in its history.
The executive was:

President:	Vivian Silver
Vice President:	Cheryll Gutkin
Secretary:	Bonita Hunter

The Drama Club extends thanks to Miss Chapman for all the hours she spent in preparation for the Festival and Drama night.

In November the Drama Festival took place. Many skits and acts were performed but at the end Vivian Silver, Joel Lazer, Laura Holden and Donald Billinkoff won with the best recitations.

Drama Night was a tremendous success. Four hundred and fifty tickets were sold which brought in $120.00. The successful results showed that Mr. Atamanchuk, Mr. Shultz, Mr. Turner and Mr. Froese's directing were highly commendable.

Chess Club

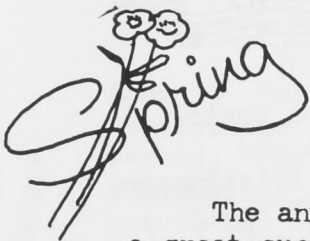

Again, as in previous years, much enthusiasum has been shown in our chess club. This year's president was John Smyrski and the other officers were: Joel Lazer, vice-president, Terry Babick, treasurer, and Mr. Penner, advisor. This year's champion was Joel Lazer. Thanks go out to Mr. Penner and all the students who participated in our chess club. The Edmund Partridge chess club will surely be a greater asset to the school in the future.

WINTER*

Carol Concert

The Christmas spirit came to Edmund Partridge on Wednesday, December 11th when the students presented their annual Christmas Concert. The auditorium was artistically decorated in a festive motif under the qualified supervision of Miss Busch. The audience was delightfully entertained by Christmas Carols sung by the Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Kristjanson. The Boys' Choir directed by the musically minded Mr. Arnould sang two lovely selections with an added attraction being Mr. Webster -- Zim-boom-bah. Under the qualified hand of Miss Murray the Rooms 2 and 5 choir furnished two more thoroughly enjoyed selections. The band conducted by Mr. White was at its best for the occasion. Vivian Silver, Joel Lazer, Laura Holden and Donald Billinkoff gave recitations and speeches.

The School Tea

The annual Edmund Partridge School Tea held on March 4th was again a great success. The auditorium was decorated in a bright spring air by an art committee under the supervision of Miss Busch.

The leading ticket salesman this year was Betty Eisenstadt of Room 12. Dale Mills, Room 5, placed second and Douglas Stewart, Room 7 third. The room selling the most tickets was Room 16. Not only the winners but all the students who sold tickets must be highly commended for their efforts. We also express our great appreciation to all the teachers and parents who helped make the tea one of the best ever held.

Glee Club

This year there were four choirs which entered the Music Festival. The Glee Club entered two categories, folk songs and Suburban Girls, grades 7 to 9. They were directed by Mrs. Kristjanson. Under the capable direction of Miss Murray the Rooms 2 and 5 choir placed second in their class. Mrs. Kristjanson also directed two other groups, Rooms 14 and 16, and Rooms 20 and 21 choirs which sang extremely well. The whole school thanks Mrs. Kristjanson, Miss Murray and Mr. Harrison for their time and effort in training the choirs. Under this qualified supervision we are sure that the school's choirs will have continuous success.

On April 17th the pupils of E.P. were entertained by a High School Band from Grand Rapids, Minnesota. They gave an enjoyable performance. The selections they played included "A Tribute to Glenn Miller" and the music from "Mr. Lucky". Their performance was greatly appreciated by the entire student body.

The students were assembled in the auditorium on April 10th to hear a High School Choir from Mound, Minnesota. They sang a variety of songs ranging from "Ava Maria" to a Hawaiian War Chant". Their songs proved to be an inspiration for our own choirs entering the festival. A group of four sang folk songs in Hootenanny style. It was an extremely enjoyable morning.

CHOCOLATE BAR SALE

On November 1st a chocolate bar sale to raise funds for band uniforms got off to a roaring start. Th arouse the spirits of the students a smashing pep rally was held. Along with exciting entertainment provided by some of the students, the audience was treated to a skit put on by our talented teachers, acting as the animals and trainers of the Moscow Circus.

The sale, however, was cut short due to an accident at the World's Finest Chocolate Company which caused the bars to contain glass. As soon as the defect was noticed the sale was suspended. A settlement was made between the school and the company. The company agreed to give the school the money which would have been taken in from one complete sale.

The room selling the most bars before the sale concluded was Room 3. Room 16 placed second and Room 18 was third. The winning salesman for the girls was Dale Mills, Room 5, with Donna Neufeld finishing second. For the boys, Hugh Letain, Room 16, led in sales and Keith Owen finished in second place. Congratulations go out not only to the winners but to all students who worked hard to sell bars.

Social

In November the first school dance of the season was held. The students attending were entertained by a trio of folksingers, the Ramblers.

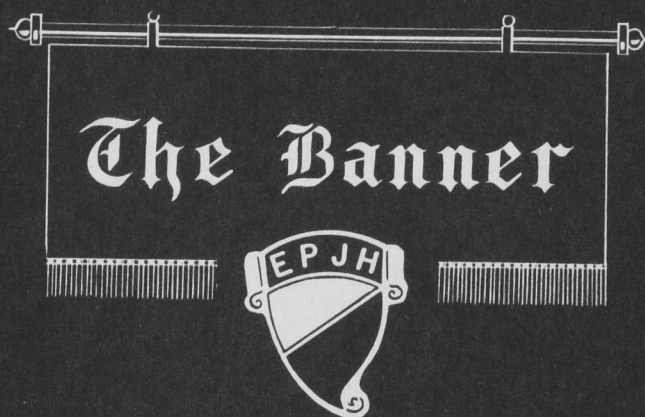

Valentine.

The annual Valentine Dance on February 14th was the most exciting social event of the school term. Prior to the event, the finalists staged an enthusiastic campaign. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Gerry Mills and Bill Foy as King and Queen of Hearts. Gerry O'Shaughnessy and Bonita Hunter were chosen as Prince and Princess.

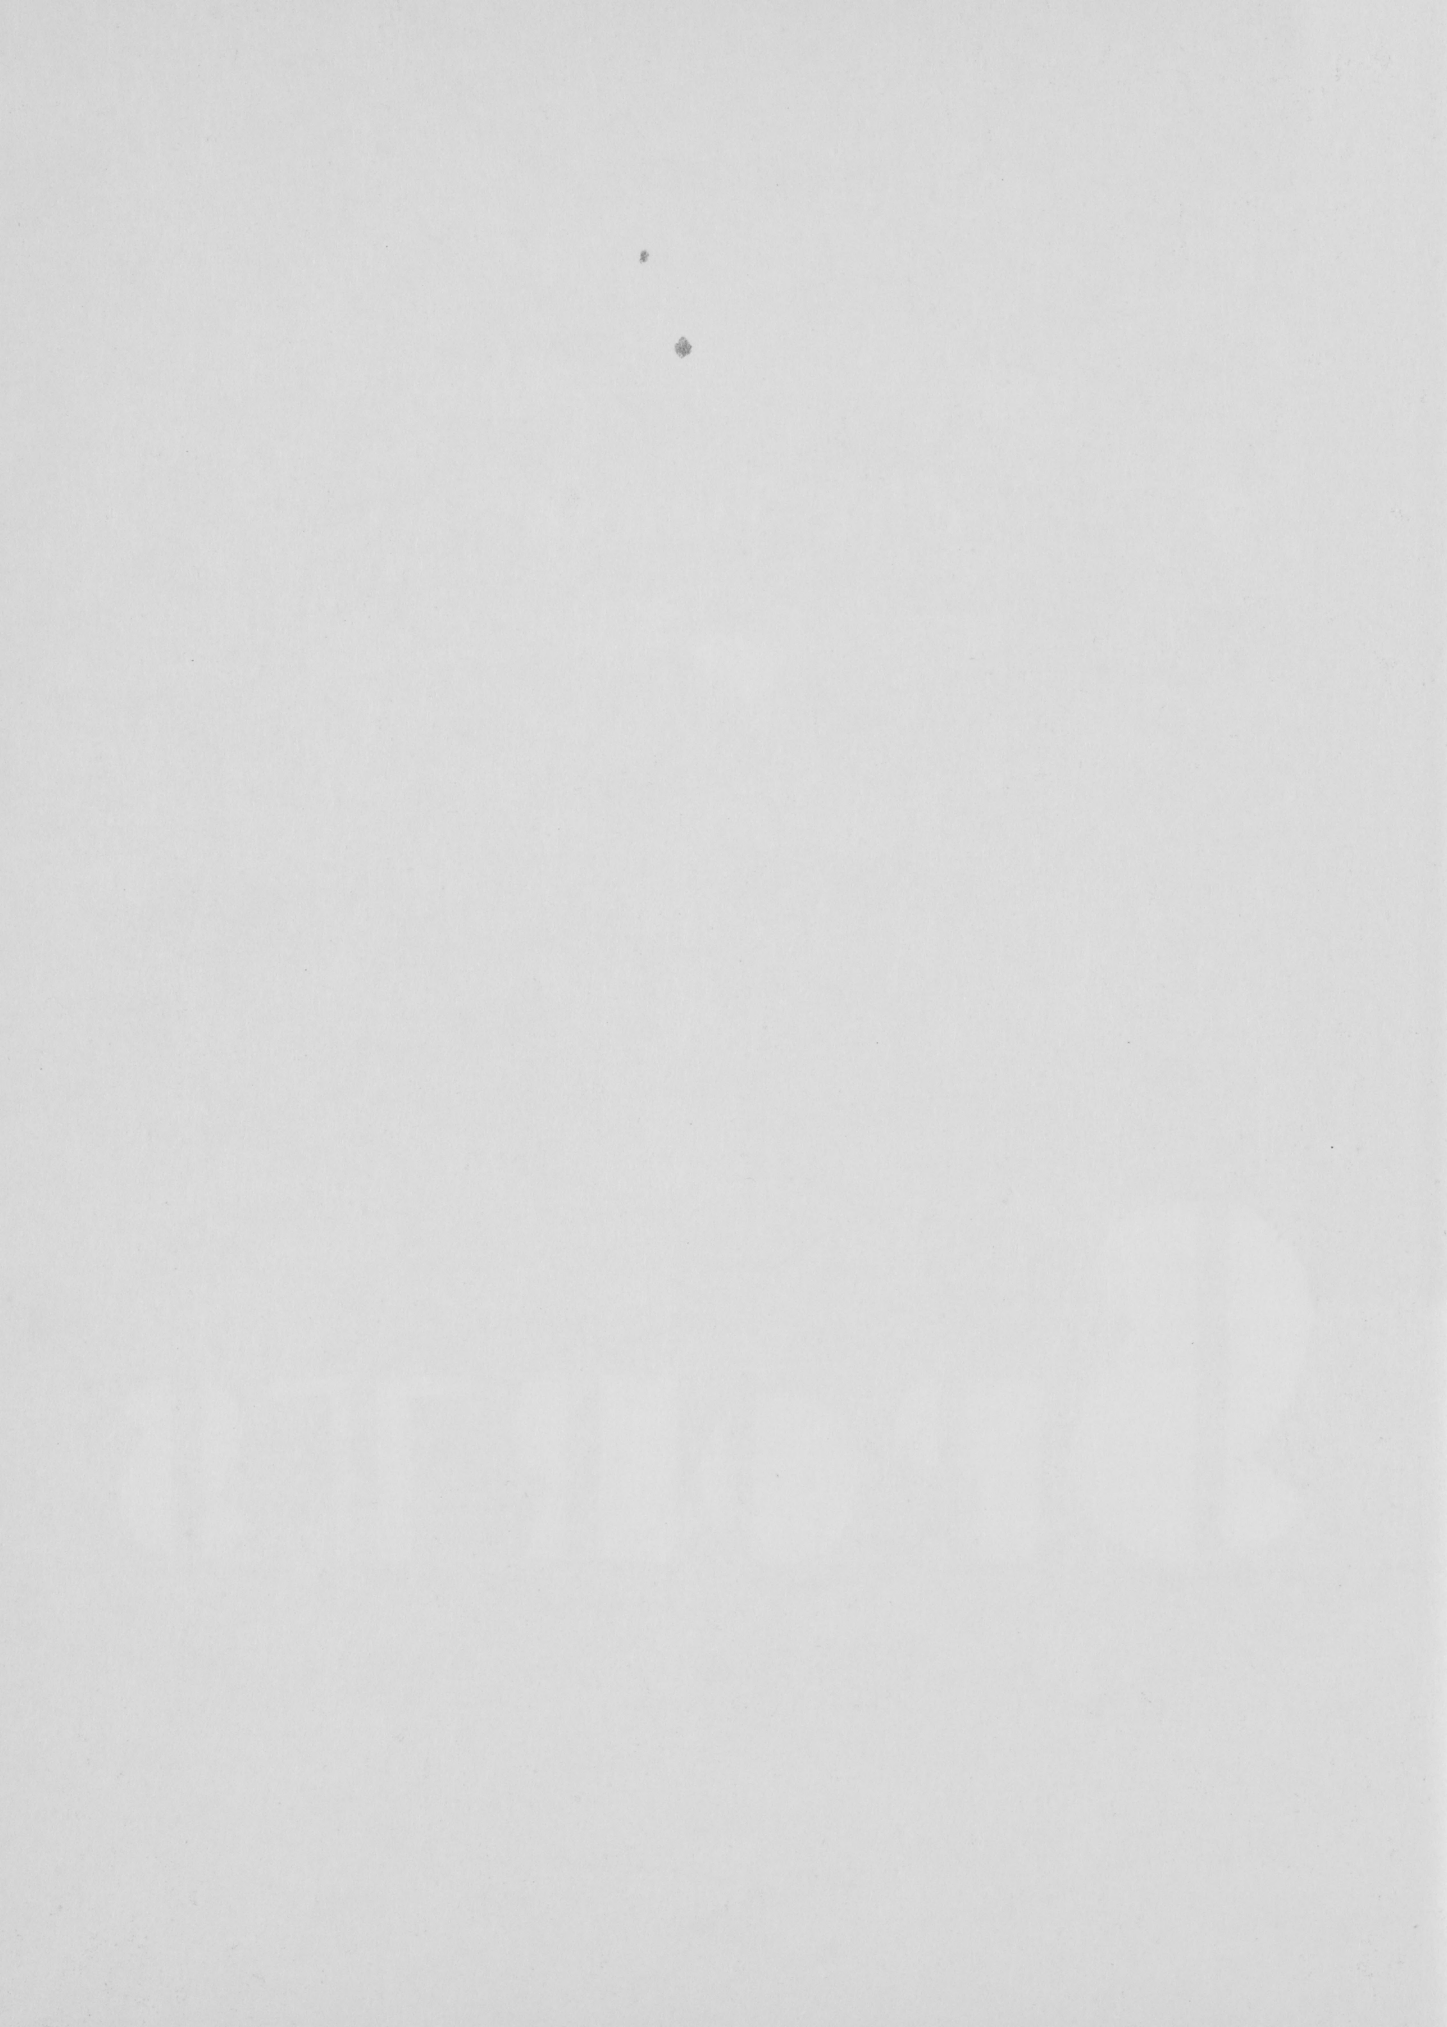

Special thanks must be given to Miss Busch and all other people involved in making the decorations for both dances. Their artistic work added to the atmosphere and helped make the events enjoyed by the many people attending.

Sock hops were held occasionally during noon hour. At one of these sock hops a silver collection was taken. The money brought in was donated to the March of Dimes. Over 25 dollars were taken in.

The cheerleaders wish to thank the teaching staff and expecially Mrs. Ferg for their patience and co-operation.

ON MEMORIZING POETRY

"Breathes there a student with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said,
"This memory work is hard on my head."

The art (?) is introduced in about Grade two, when the gullible innocents are first asked, "Wouldn't we like to know 'The Peach' by heart?" And of course they would like -- they don't know any better.

However it is in junior high that the student's problem first manifests itself: you have no memory. Now, how to memorize?

Here, in two easy steps, I give you "Memorizing without a Memory", guaranteed to work for anyone from Grade two up, with an above-moron I.Q. The method is not to memorize someone else's words, but to re-create the poem in the same way the poet originally wrote it.

For our practical application let us use "The Peach". Now, what would you say about a peach in a poem? To start out, where do you find peaches? In a peach basket, you say. Correct, but baskets are too prosaic for poetry. Peaches are on trees. Now what do they do on trees? They grow, of course. Repeat that for emphasis. What do peaches need to grow? Water and sun. What do they do when they have water and sun? They grow more. Repeat that several times for effect.

Step two is stating these facts in poetic language. You will replace "the tree" with "the orchard". Also, it would be nice to have it kissed by the sun and dew. Dew, not water. "It grew and grew and grew" neatly finishes off your little creation. Do you see? You have written the poem, and can do so again in class.

Now is the time to demonstrate your ability. Go ahead with confidence. You don't have to worry about remembering words. You are going to reconstruct the poem.

Here you go. "The peach on the ... tree, no ... orchard ... grew and grew.. um,... with the ... no, no, kissed by the sun and kissed by the water...er, dew. It grew and ... uh ... grew and grew."

Oh well, back to the drawing board!

SUMMER LANDSCAPE

I slowly began to climb the last winding part of the steep mountain trail. I wasn't sure that it had been a good idea to spend a beautiful summer day, like today, stumbling about on a mountain trail just to prove to myself that I could climb to the top of Mount Lyon. But as I rounded the last part of the trail and came upon a small grassy plateau, I realized that my efforts had been richly rewarded. From the ledge the whole beautiful valley stretched out before me in all its summer splendor.

I sat down quickly on a rock forgetting my tired and aching muscles so I could take in all the beauty nature had put before me. Deep in the valley the grass in the gently rolling fields waved softly in the cool breeze. A few cows stood lazily in the shade of a great spreading oak sedately chewing their cud. The leaves of the trees in the far end of the valley were a beautiful emerald green and seemed to shine in the warm summer sun. The wild flowers on the side of the opposite mountains seemed to form a carpet of glowing colour. The creek that wound slowly through the valley seemed to bind all these separate beautiful creations of nature into one breathtaking view.

To enhance the valley the grey mountains stood boldly in the background. Their sharp jagged peaks pierced the fluffy white clouds which floated in the pale blue sky. In sharp contrast to the quiet sleepy valley the mountains seemed a source of danger where only the brave would venture.

By this time the sun had begun to sink slowly on the distant horizon casting long thin shadows on the ground. The sky was aglow with the brilliant colours of sunset. I took one last look to make sure I would remember. Then I quickly turned and began my long descent.

WHAT IS COURAGE ?

"Forget what it is to live in peace.
Forget what it means to laugh and sing.
But, rather, accept a gun as lease
For the life that only war may bring."

This she said to her son, when the lad went away,
Not knowing for him, what there'd be ahead.
But, well knowing that he would return someday
Or else pass away with the noble dead.

For the hills of Italy are a long way from home,
And the war is right there, bloody and real.
The task at hand is to fight, then roam,
And the gallant word, "courage" has lost its appeal.

The boy became petrified, frozen with fright.
In his heart, not courage, but cowardice was there.
And when battle drew near---the time to fight,
He prayed for strength in one last simple prayer.

Then he was ready---for thick or for thin.
He was fighting HIS battle---his own trivial war,
And he fought with COURAGE---to live, to win.
To win was important, to shoot and score.

Now History says they lost that day.
But not all was lost ere the day was done,
For one boy had faced death in a valiant way
Because he knew that he and God had won.

THE CHAIR TO DOOM!

As I walked down that long dreary hall I knew what I had done. But why did I do it? Why had I killed the dearest, truest person in the world? How did it happen? I just walked up to her, put my hands around her neck and squeezed and squeezed till she fell to the floor, dead !

Now I was to pay for it. Even the walls seemed to say, "You did it and now you're going to pay for it, now you're going to die!"

I could hear the preacher chanting a short prayer for me, but nothing could help. Then that room came into sight, that room of death. I could see the image of that Chair to Doom!

Every step brought me closer and closer. Just a few more steps and I would die! That chair looked up at me with wanting eyes, wanting to get its hands on me, just sneering at me!

The straps are tight around my hands, but it doesn't matter. Then the blindfold around my eyes. The preacher has finished his prayer. But it doesn't matter, it didn't help. I'll still die.

Then the count down in my mind, 5,4,3,2,1 ---- "Cut!" yelled the director, "That was wonderful. You made your screen test!"

"I did it, I finally did it, I got the part!"

AN AUTUMN DAY

The sun had just crept over the horizon. Shortly it threw its radiant rays over the majestic autumn day. The trees and bushes looked like a war between the colours. Their splendour and magnificence was equal to a room full of diamonds. While off in the distance a crystal blue stream smashed against the stones, like boys playing a rough game of football. All around us in the farmer's field the tied sheaves of grain looked like weary soldiers with their heads bowed down. Over our heads a V formation of wild geese flew. Soon it was twilight and the sun shone light a neon disc in the horizon sinking quickly behind the sky-line. Thus ended another Autumn day.

THE VILLAGE OF TOURS

It was mid-morning of a sunny July day when we arrived in the quaint village of Tours. It was a relief to see such a pretty place after the miles of farmland. When we were told that we were going to see a French village, several hours ago, it sounded boring, but now I was willing to have a good look around and see if I couldn't change my opinion.

The town square abounded with activity. A wedding had taken place at the church a block away. Now the procession had come so far as the mayor's office. Near the group, in the centre of the cobblestone square, was a lovely fountain. Two boys were playing there with a wooden sailboat, and one looked ready to fall into the water! Other people were around, selling and buying wares. So busy were the town folk that they did not notice the arrival of the bus load of visitors.

The long trip by bus did something for our appetites. The sidewalk-cafe, which is so typical of France, immediately caught our eye. We could also smell the delicious aroma of French pastry and hot coffee. The cafe's awning was gayly candy-striped, and gave a pleasant effect. The whole group from the bus was soon at the cool cafe sampling its delightful food.

My opinion had certainly changed about the village of Tours. This was a very interesting part of my trip and I was bound to spend my full week in Tours joyfully.
